PSYCHOLOGICAL ASSISTANCE

*Not happy with your study skills (and grades)?
Having difficulty managing your time and keeping on top of your university tasks?
Being oversensitive is affecting your relationships or your university career?
Are you feeling too often excessively anxious,
embarrassed, afraid or ashamed?*

Studying and living abroad can be difficult sometimes, that is why the University of Padua decided to offer its students a psychological assistance service that provides free counseling sessions in an individual or group setting.

The service does not provide immediate emergency assistance or pharmacological support but helps students along their academic and non-academic path by defining their psychological needs and supporting them through the issues that they may face in their everyday life.

International students can refer to psychological.assistance.scup@unipd.it to ask for information or an appointment.

The Padova University Sports Centre (CUS) offers many opportunities to take part in sports, competitive and amateur alike, at the two structures located in Via Giordano Bruno and Via Jacopo Corrado.

In addition to services for payment, there are "no pay" activities for which the Centre makes its facilities available free of charge to users during set time slots, typically the track and field arena, 5-a-side football pitch, and tennis, volleyball, basketball and handball courts
